

As a HAM radio operator I have discovered the benefit of alternate sources of information and I beleive limiuting XM radio in any way does NOT do service to the listening audience. Where would the public be if HAM radio decided that, because radio stations were already broadcasting disaster information, they did not have to be there?

The more sources of PUBLIC information available is in the public's and the nations best interest.

I believe ANY restrictions placed on XM radio would be like shooting ourselves in the foot.

Thank You
